

I want to personally welcome you to the Transmission from Polywater, our quarterly e-newsletter, which is also available in German, French and Spanish.

Throughout the years, our company has contributed knowledge and solutions toward the electrical and telecommunications industries. From our long-standing IEEE leadership to our influence on smarter design and planning of cable pulls with friction measurement science and pull measurement data and software, we think that it is important.

Now, we are excited to share our viewpoint on innovation in sealing technologies and cleaners and perspectives on how to anticipate and overcome field-specific challenges.

This first newsletter focuses on global water events and system resiliency, which raise important questions and concerns about how to safeguard mission-critical systems within multiple industries.

We look forward to sharing our years of research and field best practices while adding perspective to industry trends.

Sincerely,
Erik Freyser, president
